About the Workshop

The Workshop theme is How to Access & Use Electronic Resources.

The Digital Era has completely changed the role of Library & Information Science professionals. This era has also provided an opportunity to change ourselves by making us more techno savvy. It has been a big boon as we can easily & quickly provide more services to our readers.

The term electronic resources refers to all information products that a library provides through computer based facilities, smart phones or e-book readers both online or offline. Such resources include e-journals, e-books, e-databases, e-reference sources, e-theses & dissertations, e-course material and many more. Meaningful Library services can be provided by accessing these electronic resources to support both students & faculty in their studies, research & training.

There are a large number of free Open Source Resources. Besides these resources, many resources have been listed by the National Digital Library. MHRD under its National Mission on Education through ICT has initiated (NDL India) pilot project to develop a framework of virtual repository of learning resources with a single-window search facility. Filtered and federated searching is employed to facilitate focused searching so that learners can find out the right resource with least effort and in minimum time. It consists of lakhs of Books & Journal articles, thousands of ETDs & video lectures & hundreds of manuscripts & audio lectures. More than 87 lakh items have been hosted in NDL India.

We need to prepare broad subject wise, A to Z Lists of free Open Source Resources. This will be very helpful for different colleges such as Arts, Commerce, Management, Science, etc. as it will enable LIS Professionals to help their readers to obtain latest & precise information.

During the Workshop, besides a few theoretical lectures, more emphasis will be on conducting hands-on-training.
